Deadly snakes we were
Smoking our cigarettes
Like poets we breeze through
With burning hands and sentences
Time to grab your ears
And thrust my lips so you can hear
The zips and zings of my heart
Comes back to melting you tonight

And all the lights converge
Streetlights hang lights moon light
On you and in this quiet
You stood in spotlight, I realize
You're like wine down my throat
So I never lose my glow
Sink deep into this night
And watch these blizzards pass us by.
