Verse 1

The ceiling is leaking, it's leaking rust
All there's to hope for is it don't leak on us
You can hide in the corners, cover your mouth
Entertaining a thought about moving back south

Verse 2

Heavy boots over head, stomping so heavily
It keeps raining plaster and there's just dust to breathe
Falling through floor worlds these the loudest days
But in the land of the lost, they get saved

Verse 3

All my accomplishments lie underground.
All my accomplices live in other towns.
Catch me not falling, each week a warning
They'll come and get me some velvet morning.
